Appointed by the Archdiocese of Birmingham

Position - serving on the Standards Committee

I have served as a Foundation Governor of St Augustine's School for almost 25 years. I am a widowed mother of 4 grown up children, the youngest of whom attended our school. Before taking over my husband's hotel and computer business, I was a primary school teacher and had been involved in the development of the first Baseline Assessment scheme for Reception children in Northamptonshire. In addition to a particular interest in the early identification and progress of pupils with special needs, I undertook training in Philadelphia in a learning programme designed to help all pupils across the widest ability range to maximise and realise their full potential. Such influences have reinforced my belief that the most successful teaching takes an innovative approach to learning. One of my prevailing passions is Education, in particular, Catholic Education and I feel very privileged to continue to work alongside the outstanding and inspiring pupils, staff and governors of St Augustine's School.
